THREE WERE NAMED

Depositors of Defunct Bank Name Three at Meeting Authorized by Chancellor --A List of the Overdrafts.

THE closing of the Citizens bank is still agitating the public mind. Charges and counter charges fly thick and fast. The public mind, in fact, is ill at ease, and such a condition would be naturally expected. The report of Receiver West hasn't made the situation any more hopeful and depositors are trying to unload at 60 per cent and even 70 per cent discount. Some have sold their deposit account in the Citizens bank as low as 30 cents on the dollar. Others look on the hopeful side and declare they won't take a cent for dollar for their deposits.

times that they are subordinate and under your authority as receiver.

You are hereby requested to please inform either one of the undersigned the selection you have made.

Yours truly,
R. G. FLOYD, Chairman,
F. A. HANSEN, Secretary.

When the call for a creditors' meeting was published, the Times-Echo of $1,775 overdraft fame immediately got busy and called a meeting at Barnes-Blockson hall.

In its call it asked with righteous indignation bursting from every letter and quailed by what authority was the call made and in its usual inconsistent course proceeded to call a meeting on its own authority.

It was all wrong for the Flashlight to call a meeting by permission of the Chancellor, naming a place, date and hour but all right for the mighty Overdraft Miller to call a meeting and act as chief of the applauding corps. Who wouldn't applaud under like conditions? Giles E. Miller might "restore confidence" and help relieve the embarrassment of the bank by restoring to the depositors his $1,775 overdrafts and paying his $3,750 mortgage indebtedness. That would be an act that we depositors would enjoy to the fullest extent and we would all give him the applause due a "small" benefactor.

The meeting wasn't at the Giles E. Miller, but understand that

We copy the following from the Times-Echo, the paper which our readers will no doubt remember overdraw its account at the Citizens bank. We ask our readers to read closely the article especially referred to as "secret, star chamber meeting" and also the remarks purporting to come from the mouth of Mr. Duncan.

(FROM THE TIMES ECHO)

However, as a secret, star-chamber meeting had been held in a law office for the purpose for which this meeting had been called, and three names selected, it was deemed advisable to select three men to present to Mr. West. The selections were made by vote, the following being the names: B. H. Blockson, Dr. A. E. Tatman and J. O. Melone.

The following resolution, to be presented to Chancellor Humphreys, was then unanimously adopted:

"Resolved. That in presenting these three names to the court, it is the sense of this meeting, that the depositors do not deem it necessary to have an assistant for Receiver West; but if the court in its wisdom, deems it wise or expedient, we ask the Honorable Court to select one of the three chosen by the meeting."

Following the passage of the foregoing resolutions, Mr. Duncan was called for. He had been quietly seated in the hall watching the proceedings, and as he walked to the front, he was greeted by applause that amounted to an ovation. He stated that it was no easy matter for a man in his position to make a speech, and that he would not make a speech, but would talk to the meeting, which he said had demonstrated itself to be a body of men. realize were errors beforehand.

Mr. Duncan did not hesitate to give names and express his sentiments on the methods his adversaries had adopted. He openly charged the acting president of the First National Bank and some of its directors with bad faith in their actions toward him in this time of difficulty, and called attention to the fact that it occurred during the absence of President Floyd of that institution. He called attention to the efforts of a certain physician in the city who was endeavoring to find some loophole to place the Citizens Electric Company in the hands of a receiver. He called on Mr. C. H. Smith, president of the Crescent Hotel Company, if he was in the hall, to stand forth and repeat statements he had heard he was circulating by word of mouth, asked why he had worked to keep people from attending this meeting, and announced his willingness to answer any questions regarding the condition and doings of the bank.
